Phoenix Home Remodeling Company, Republic West, Receives Contractor of the Year Award

Phoenix, AZ. January 18, 2010 – Phoenix home remodeling company, Republic West, has received yet another Contractor of the Year Award.

The Greater Phoenix Chapter of National Association of the Remodeling Industry (NARI) awarded Republic West, a 2010 Contractor of the Year Awards for one of their projects. The awards are given to National Association of Remodeling Industry (NARI) members who demonstrate outstanding work in their remodeling projects. An impartial panel comprised of architects and designers judged the Contractor of the Year (CotY) entries based on functionality, problem solving, aesthetics, craftsmanship, innovation, degree of difficulty and entry presentation.

One Republic West winner was given to Arthur Gambino, for a home office remodeling project. A local homeowner, who is also world class hunter, wanted a “canvas” on which to display his trophies. Arthur created a very masculine room with space to hang the “trophies.”

Linda Zimmerman, co-owner of Republic West stated, "We are thrilled that one of our employees at Republic West was given this award. Obviously we wouldn't have succeeded to this level without Arthur's desire for excellence and attention to details."

This is a repeat performance for Republic West, who was honored with two awards in 2008 and two in 2009. In addition to the NARI CotY Awards, Republic West has been recognized with three Better Business Bureau Business Ethics Awards and other industry accolades including Angie's List Super Service Awards for 2007, 2008 and 2009.
